

Sha-Zamm!!!

Boom! And just like that, there He is! Of course the first people to see Him were women. They're also the first to believe not only that it was Him, but to do what He told them after He defeated death once and for all.

This is the final and everlasting proof needed that women are the better sex. It will endure the test of this time and this age until neither is anymore.

They were able to discern, capture in their minds the moment of the most explosive and massive event in all of human history, and believe!

To discern? Verb: to perceive or recognize something; distinguish someone or something by sight or with any of the other senses; to fully understand. Even with the 'sixth' sense.

There certainly is no proof, at least from a biblical or historical perspective (which in many cases, if not most, are the same), of what I'm about to write next. It is just that I've always wondered if, the first person the Master really appeared to was, yes a woman, but it was not one of those described in scripture. It was his mother. And her, being the intercessor of all souls and the keeper of many secrets would never have told a single person. I do not know if it happened or did not happen. I just wonder.

It would be fitting, eh?

Since sometime from around mid-February until now we've read, sought understanding, and celebrated the most human and divine of journeys of anyone ever. And even though it is two thousand or so years later, we still on a daily basis; read, attempt to discern, celebrate and live ourselves this journey.

I find myself speechless. For those who know me, I'm sure it alarms them. Something to the effect of, what is wrong with him now?! He certainly is never at a loss for words. When you are able to discern, in even the simplest of ways, the magnality of the greatest story ever told realizing the story is not ended... but, in fact, you are in it...

Well, there goes the mind, blown to bits!!

So now it comes down to what kind of part are you playing in this story, the Greatest One ever told. Are you an extra? Are you one of the main actresses or actors? We know Who has the Lead, any other actor or actress can aspire to be at best, a supporting actor or actress. Is your role that of a hero? Or are you a villain? Or are you simply a bystander, one who does not realize you are in the story? Yet you are. You sit on the sidelines and go about your everyday lives without knowing the indescribable event you of which you are a part, the story that never ends going on into eternity. It will culminate here though, on this planet, with the end of all things that were ever of this earth.

Whew!

Thank the One Who Is All that He loves us unconditionally, before, now and forever....

Or I really would not know what to do.
